STATE OF NEVADA
LOCAL GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEE-MANAGEMENT
RELATIONS BOARD

ERIC KERNS, Individually; LAS VEGAS
POLICE MANAGERS AND SUPERVISORS ASSOCIATION,

Complainants,

v.

LAS VEGAS METROPOLITAN POLICE

Respondent.

Case No. 2017-010

ORDER

ITEM NO. 827

On February 14, 2018, this matter came before the State of Nevada, Local Government Employee-Management Relations Board (“Board”) for consideration and decision pursuant to the provisions of the Local Government-Management Relations Act (the “Act”), NAC Chapter 288 and NRS Chapter 233B. The Board held an administrative hearing on this matter on December 11 and 12, 2017. The Board accepted post-hearing briefs in this matter as well.

This case stems from the Bolden Area Command pursuit which occurred on July 22, 2016. Sergeant Kerns became involved in this pursuit, and the Department found that he did not notify communications that the pursuit was on-going and failed to provide any information about the pursuit over the radio. Because Kerns failed to execute his duties as a sergeant and failed to provide the requisite information about the pursuit over the radio, the Department concluded that he placed citizens at risk of significant harm as well as committing other policy violations.

As a result of the underlying incident, an internal investigation was opened. In addition to Kerns, at least 5 other officers were subject employees in the investigation. During the investigation, it became apparent that multiple officers engaged in misconduct, including Kerns. Assistant Sheriff Fasulo extended a deal to Kerns, through his union, on or about February 27, 2017. Specifically, Assistant Sheriff Fasulo engaged in a dialog with Michelle Jotz (“Jotz”), President of the LAS VEGAS

1 POLICE MANAGERS AND SUPERVISORS ASSOCIATION (the “Association”).

2 In this matter, Complainants argue that Kerns was coerced into early retirement. Specifically,
3 Complainants allege that the LAS VEGAS METROPOLITAN POLICE DEPARTMENT (the 4 “Department”) made several unilateral acts in an attempt to circumvent the parties’ CBA.
5 Complainants argue that the Department interfered with Kerns’ disciplinary and grievance rights by 6 pressuring him into a “plea bargaining deal”, requiring he waive his grievance rights or be demoted.
7 Complainants state that Assistant Sheriff Fasulo clandestinely met with Kerns to coerce him into taking 8 the deal, and to make it clear he was leaving K-9 one way or another, either through transfer or 9 demotion. Finally, Complainants alleged that Director Frost violated the parties’ CBA, past practice,
10 and NRS 613.200¹ when she issued discipline to Kerns after he retired and denied his alleged right to 11 arbitrate in accordance with the parties’ CBA.

12 The Department argues that this case makes no sense. Specifically, the Department stated that 13 the Complainants filed the instant case seeking to declare informal settlement discussions between a 14 bargaining agent and employer as a mandatory subject of bargaining, despite no authority for such 15 proposition. The Department argues that after the underlying events occurred, it became clear that 16 Kerns did not want to leave his assignment in K-9 and did not want to get disciplined. When the 17 negotiation efforts of Kerns’ union (Complainant LVPMSA) did not result in an agreement which left 18 Kerns in K-9, he opted to voluntarily retire rather than face discipline. Kerns retired from the 19 Department with no discipline. The Department argues this case is essentially a dispute on whether it
20 committed a prohibited labor practice by trying to informally work with Kerns’ representative to settle 21 the matter. The Department advances that such is not a deviation from a term of the parties’ CBA, nor

22
23 ¹ The Board notes that its authority is limited to matters arising out of the interpretation of, or 24 performance under, the provisions of the Employee-Management Relations Act. NRS 288.110(2). To 25 the extent Complainants seek this Board to find a violation of NRS 613.200, the Board declines to do
26 so. This is expressly beyond the Board’s jurisdiction, which is well established. See NRS 288.110(2);

1 is it a prohibited labor practice.

2 DISCUSSION

3 NRS 288.270(1)(e) deems it a prohibited labor practice for a local government employer to 4 bargain in bad faith with a recognized employee organization and a unilateral change to the bargained
5 for terms of employment is regarded as a per se violation of this statute. A unilateral change also
6 violates NRS 288.270(1)(a). O'Leary v. Las Vegas Metropolitan Police Dep't, Item No. 803, EMRB
7 Case No. A1-046116 (May 15, 2015). Under the unilateral change theory, an employer commits a 8 prohibited labor practice when it changes the terms and conditions of employment without first 9 bargaining in good faith with the recognized bargaining agent. Boykin v. City of N. Las Vegas Police
10 Dep't, Case No. A1-045921, Item No. 674E (2010); City of Reno v. Reno Police Protective Ass'n, 118
11 Nev. 889, 59 P.3d 1212 (2002).

12 A party claiming that a unilateral change has been committed must show by a preponderance of 13 the evidence that the actual terms of conditions of employment have been changed by the employer 14 such that after the occurrence which the subject of the complaint, terms of the employment differ from 15 what was bargaining for or otherwise established. O'Leary v. Las Vegas Metropolitan Police Dep't,
16 Item No. 803, EMRB Case No. A1-046116 (May 15, 2015); see also Serv. Employees Int'l Union,
17 Local 1107 v. Clark County, Item No. 713A, Case No. A1-045965 (Oct. 5, 2010); Krumme v. Las 18 Vegas Metropolitan Police Dep't, Item No. 822, Case No. 2016-010 (2017); Brown v. Las Vegas
19 Metropolitan Police Dep't, Item No. 818, Case No. 2015-013 (2016). Typically, a complainant can 20 meet this burden by showing the following 4 elements: (1) the employer breached or altered the CBA or 21 established past practice; (2) the employer's action was taken without bargaining with the union over 22 the change; (3) the change in policy concerns a matter within the scope of representation; and (4) the 23 change is not merely an isolated breach of contract, but amounts to a change in policy (i.e. the change 24 has a generalized effect or continuing impact on the bargaining unit members' terms and conditions of 25 employment). O'Leary, at 7; California State Employees' Ass'n v. Pub. Employment Relations Bd., 51
26 Cal. App. 4th 923, 935, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 488, 496 (1996).

27 Assistant Sheriff Fasulo and Jotz engaged in informal resolution discussions in an effort to 28 mitigate the potential discipline the Department expected would be forthcoming based upon the

1 findings of IAB. Specifically, Kerns' chain of command was considering a demotion as the 2 recommended discipline for Kerns. On February 27, 2017, Jotz texted Assistant Sheriff Fasulo
3 indicating she got a response from Kerns and wanted to call Assistant Sheriff Fasulo. On February 28,
4 2017, the two spoke and Assistant Sheriff Fasulo told Jotz he had an "expedited offer" for Kerns. Jotz
5 was confused because traditionally expedited offers were made prior to a subject employee being 6 interview. Jotz testified that she explained this was not the normal course for an expedited but they 7 were "willing to hear [Fasulo] out". Jotz reached out to Kerns who indicated he was willing to entertain
8 anything the Department wanted to bring forward. Jotz then requested the expedited offer be sent over.
9 Assistant Sheriff Fasulo indicated he didn't have it written yet as they were waiting on a response from 10 Jotz. Assistant Sheriff Fasulo explained to Jotz what the contents of the offer would essentially be 11 (including a disciplinary transfer, rather than a demotion). Jotz requested it be in writing so Kerns
12 could better understand. The Department then sent this settlement agreement for consideration.

13 Jotz received the settlement offer on February 28, 2017 and said she was confused as it was 14 entitled a settlement agreement and not an expedited offer. Assistant Sheriff Fasulo explained they do 15 these on a settlement agreement, he would see about an expedited officer instead, but they were 16 essentially the same thing in this case, as the same terms would apply. Jotz indicated that the settlement
17 agreement may come off as a threat and didn't want Kerns to see it in that form. Jotz later indicated
18 that Vice Chairman of the Association, Russ Wood, thought it was now a waste of time changing the 19 title of the document and the Association should just present the settlement offer to Kerns. Assistant 20 Sheriff Fasulo told Jotz he already has the Director of Labor Relations, Jamie Frost, working on the 21 expedited offer. Jotz confirmed that Kerns was definitely open to considering the offer on the table.

22 On March 2, 2017, the Association was presented with an expedited offer, which called for a
23 disciplinary transfer as the parties had negotiated. Within hours of receiving this offer, Kerns 24 voluntarily submitted his retirement paperwork.

25 At no point in the 50 or so text messages and calls between Jotz and Assistant Sheriff Fasulo,
26 did Jotz object to the concept or practice of informal settlement discussions. To the contrary, Jotz 27 actively engaged in the discussions and even made suggestions towards reaching a resolution. As 28 indicated, Jotz even requested the expedited offer in writing to show Kerns, among other active conduct

1 as detailed above. Moreover, the Board was presented with credible evidence that the past practice of 2 the parties was such that informal settlement discussions were not out of the ordinary. As such, the 3 Board does not find a unilateral change in this regard or a failure to bargain in good faith concerning a
4 mandatory subject of bargaining. Informal settlement discussions are not listed as a mandatory subject
5 of bargaining. The parties' CBA does not prohibit either party from attempting to resolve an issue
6 informally. Moreover, it is not consistent with the basic notions of labor relations, and the fundamental
7 purposes of the EMRA, to prevent a party from engaging in settlement/resolution discussions at such a
8 stage of an investigative process.

9 The Department eventually completed its internal investigation into the pursuit and drafted an 10 AOC for the findings related to Kerns. The AOC is the form the Department uses to document
11 discipline for employees. However, Kerns had already voluntarily retired before the AOC was drafted
12 and circulated. Director Frost testified it has been the past practice before her employment with the 13 Department, to include an AOC for employees who were sustained for misconduct, but separated from 14 employment prior to the completion of the discipline process. Frost essentially explained that the 15 Department can't just abandon an investigation because an employee voluntarily retires, and the Board
16 received evidence of multiple examples of instances when the Department completed an AOC after an 17 employee was separated. The Board finds this testimony credible.² Consistent with the CBA, Kerns
18 submitted a rebuttal statement to the AOC which was placed in his personnel file. Indeed, 19 "[d]iscipline" means "to punish", and the evidence established that the AOC did not contain as such 20 (no written reprimand, suspension, disciplinary transfer, demotion, or termination was issued) and was 21 in accordance with the parties' CBA. City of Reno v. Reno Police Protective Ass'n, 118 Nev. 889, 900, 22 59 P.3d 1212, 1220 (2002). The Board further finds Frost's testimony credible in this regard indicating 23 that the AOC itself is not discipline, and Kerns was not disciplined or intended to be punished in this 24 case. The Board also finds the testimony of Assistant Sheriff Fasulo and Peter Bofelli credible in this 25 regard.

26 _____
27 ² Indeed, an employer may create, by practice over a substantial period of time, a term of condition of 28 employment which it is obligated to continue, subject to negotiation. City of Reno, 118 Nev. at 900, 59
P.3d at 1220.

1 Kerns attempted to grieve the AOC (and eventually proceed to arbitration); however, the Board
2 finds that as he was no longer an employee, he did not have a right to do so.³ Complainants sent the 3 Department a request for arbitration pursuant to Art. 12 of the parties' CBA "to evaluate the propriety
4 of an alleged violation of LVMPD Critical Procedure 6/014.00 Vehicle Pursuit." The parties CBA
5 contains a very specific definition of an "employee". Kerns was no longer an employee as defined in 6 the CBA after his voluntary retirement became effective. The plain language of the CBA defines an 7 employee as a person having regular commissioned Civil Service appointment, which Kerns did not
8 possess when he requested arbitration for the AOC. Moreover, the CBA contains a specific definition
9 for "discipline", including in regards to grievances. As indicated above, Kerns was not disciplined in 10 this matter. As such, the Department followed the parties' CBA and thus did not commit a unilateral
11 change in this regard. See Douglas Cnty. Support Staff Org. v. Douglas Cnty. Sch. Dist., Case No. A1-
12 046105, Item No. 797 ("A party that adheres to the terms of a collective bargaining agreement does not 13 commit a unilateral change for the self-evident reasons that nothing is actually changed from what has 14 been negotiated."). Moreover, the Board finds Frost's testimony credible that that past practice of the 15 Department is to look at the date the grievance is filed.

16 Additionally, the Board finds that Kerns was not coerced into retirement, and indeed voluntarily
17 did so. While these negotiations were occurring, Assistant Sheriff Fasulo, by happenstance, ran into 18 Kerns at a retirement function at Mt. Charleston. While Assistant Sheriff Fasulo and Kerns gave 19 different recollections of their conversation outside of the function, the Board finds Assistant Sheriff
20 Fasulo's testimony credible in this regard. Assistant Sheriff Fasulo testified that he didn't know Kerns 21 was there and out of a very genuine intent to find out how he was doing, they engaged in what 22 eventually became an emotional conversation for Kerns. Kerns indicated to Assistant Sheriff Fasulo
23 that he wanted to retire, Assistant Sheriff Fasulo told him that he didn't feel that was the best thing for 24 him, he didn't want Kerns to retire, and thought his career was salvageable. Kerns became emotional

26 ³ The Board may construe the parties' CBA and resolve ambiguities as necessary to determine whether 27 or not a unilateral change has been committed. Boykin v. City of N. Las Vegas Police Dept., Item No.
28 674E, Case No. A1-045921 (2010), citing NLRB v. Strong Roofing & Ins. Co., 393 U.S. 357 (1969),
NLRB v. C&C Plywood Corp., 385 U.S. 421 (1967), Jim Walter Resources, 289 NLRB 1441, 1449
(1988).

1 and explained he was embarrassed in front of his kids over what had occurred. Assistant Sheriff Fasulo
2 relayed to the Board that Kerns appeared to be overly invested in his K-9 position. Assistant Sheriff
3 Fasulo said that in his opinion retirement was not that best option for Kerns for a variety of reasons.
4 The Board also finds the testimony from Sergeant Brandon Conk credible that the two investigative 5 reports did not exist.

6 While Kerns may have made a bad choice to retire, and thus lost his ability to grieve and 7 arbitrate the dispute, Kerns made this decision and was represented by his Association when doing so.
8 Indeed, had Kerns not accepted the offer and choose not to voluntarily retire, he would have received
9 whatever discipline the chain of command recommended and would have had the opportunity to grieve
10 any discipline in accordance with the CBA. Kerns, however, elected to forfeit his grievance rights by 11 prematurely retiring.

12 Finally, based on the facts in this case and the issues presented, the Board declines to award 13 costs and fees in this matter.

14 FINDINGS OF FACT

15 1. Assistant Sheriff Fasulo and Jotz engaged in informal resolution discussions in an effort
16 to mitigate the potential discipline the Department expected would be forthcoming based upon the 17 findings of IAB.

18 2. Kerns' chain of command was considering a demotion as the recommended discipline
19 for Kerns.

20 3. On February 27, 2017, Jotz texted Assistant Sheriff Fasulo indicating she got a response
21 from Kerns and wanted to call Assistant Sheriff Fasulo.

22 4. On February 28, 2017, the two spoke and Assistant Sheriff Fasulo told Jotz he had an 23 "expedited offer" for Kerns.

24 5. Jotz reached out to Kerns who indicated he was willing to entertain anything the 25 Department wanted to bring forward.

26 6. Jotz then requested the expedited offer be sent over.

27 7. Assistant Sheriff Fasulo explained to Jotz what the contents of the offer would 28 essentially be (including a disciplinary transfer, rather than a demotion).

1 8. Jotz requested it be in writing so Kerns could better understand.

2 9. Jotz received the settlement offer on February 28, 2017 and said she was confused as it
3 was entitled a settlement agreement and not an expedited offer.

4 10. Jotz indicated that the settlement agreement may come off as a threat and didn't want
5 Kerns to see it in that form.

6 11. Jotz confirmed that Kerns was definitely open to considering the offer on the table.

7 12. On March 2, 2017, the Association was presented with an expedited offer, which called 8 for a disciplinary transfer as the parties had negotiated.

9 13. Within hours of receiving this offer, Kerns voluntarily submitted his retirement 10 paperwork.

11 14. At no point in the 50 or so text messages and calls between Jotz and Assistant Sheriff
12 Fasulo, did Jotz object to the concept or practice of informal settlement discussions.

13 15. Jotz actively engaged in the discussions and even made suggestions towards reaching a 14 resolution.

15 16. The Board was presented with credible evidence that the past practice of the parties was 16 such that informal, settlement discussions were not out of the ordinary.

17 17. The parties' CBA does not prohibit either party from attempting to resolve an issue 18 informally.

19 18. The Department eventually completed its internal investigation into the pursuit and 20 drafted an AOC for the findings related to Kerns.

21 19. Kerns had already voluntarily retired before the AOC was drafted and circulated.

22 20. It has been the past practice before her employment with the Department, to include an 23 AOC for employees who were sustained for misconduct, but separated from employment prior to the 24 completion of the discipline process.

25 21. The Department can't just abandon an investigation because an employee voluntarily
26 retires, and the Board received evidence of multiple examples of instances when the Department
27 completed an AOC after an employee was separated.

28 22. Consistent with the CBA, Kerns submitted a rebuttal statement to the AOC which was

1 placed in his personnel file.

2 23. “Discipline” means “to punish”, and the evidence established that the AOC did not 3 contain as such (no written reprimand, suspension, disciplinary transfer, demotion, or termination was 4 issued) and was in accordance with the parties’ CBA.

5 24. The AOC itself is not discipline, and Kerns was not disciplined or intended to be 6 punished in this case.

7 25. Kerns attempted to grieve the AOC (and eventually proceed to arbitration); however, the 8 Board finds that as he was no longer an employee, he did not have a right to do so.

9 26. Kerns was no longer an employee as defined in the CBA after his voluntary retirement 10 became effective.

11 27. The plain language of the CBA defines an employee as a person having regular 12 commissioned Civil Service appointment, which Kerns did not possess when he requested arbitration
13 for the AOC.

14 28. The CBA contains a specific definition for “discipline”, including in regards to 15 grievances.

16 29. Kerns was not coerced into retirement, and indeed voluntarily did so.

17 30. While Assistant Sheriff Fasulo and Kerns gave different recollections of their 18 conversation outside of the function, the Board finds Assistant Sheriff Fasulo’s testimony credible in 19 this regard.

20 31. Assistant Sheriff Fasulo testified that he didn’t know Kerns was there and out of a very 21 genuine intent to find out how he was doing, they engaged in what eventually became an emotional 22 conversation for Kerns.

23 32. Kerns indicated to Assistant Sheriff Fasulo that he wanted to retire, Assistant Sheriff
24 Fasulo told him that he didn’t feel that was the best thing for him, he didn’t want Kerns to retire, and 25 thought his career was salvageable.

26 33. Assistant Sheriff Fasulo said that in his opinion retirement was not that best option for 27 Kerns for a variety of reasons.

28 34. The past practice of the Department is to look at the date the grievance is filed.

1 35. Two investigative reports did not exist.

2 36. Kerns made the decision to retire and was represented by his Association when doing so.

3 37. Kerns, however, elected to forfeit his grievance rights by prematurely retiring.

4 38. If any of the foregoing findings is more appropriately construed as a conclusion of law, it
5 may be so construed.

6 CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

7 1. The Board is authorized to hear and determine complaints arising under the Local 8 Government Employee-Management Relations Act.

9 2. The Board has exclusive jurisdiction over the parties and the subject matters of the 10 Complaint on file herein pursuant to the provisions of NRS Chapter 288.

11 3. It is a prohibited labor practice under NRS 288.270(1)(e) for a local government
12 employer to unilaterally change the terms and conditions of employment concerning a mandatory 13 subject of bargaining.

14 4. Under the unilateral change theory, an employer commits a prohibited labor practice 15 when it changes the terms and conditions of employment without first bargaining in good faith with the 16 recognized bargaining agent.

17 5. A party claiming that a unilateral change has been committed must show by a 18 preponderance of the evidence that the actual terms of conditions of employment have been changed by 19 the employer such that after the occurrence which the subject of the complaint, terms of the 20 employment differ from what was bargaining for or otherwise established.

21 6. A complainant can demonstrate a unilateral change by showing: (1) the employer
22 breached or altered the collective bargaining agreement, or established past practice; (2) the employer's 23 actions was taken without bargaining with the recognize bargaining agent over the change; (3) the 24 change in policy concerns a matter within the scope of representation; and (4) the change is not merely 25 an isolated breach of contract, but amounts to a change of policy, i.e., the change has a generalized 26 effect or continuing impact on the bargaining unit members' terms and conditions of employment.

27 7. To the extent Complainants seek this Board to find a violation of NRS 613.200, the 28 Board declines to do so. This is expressly beyond the Board's jurisdiction, which is well established.

1 8. Informal settlement discussions are not listed as a mandatory subject of bargaining.

2 9. It is not consistent with the basic notions of labor relations, and the fundamental
3 purposes of the EMRA, to prevent a party from engaging in settlement/resolution discussions at such a
4 stage of an investigative process.

5 10. The Board may construe the parties' CBA and resolve ambiguities as necessary to 6 determine whether or not a unilateral change has been committed.

7 11. The Department followed the parties' CBA and past practice and thus did not commit a 8 unilateral change in this regard.

9 12. The complaint filed in this matter is not well-taken.

10 13. If any of the foregoing conclusions is more appropriately construed as a finding of fact, it
11 may be so construed.

12 ORDER

13 Based on the foregoing, it is hereby ordered that the Board finds in favor of Respondent
14 LVMPD as set forth above. Complainants shall take nothing by way of their Complaint.
